2.2.1 - The institution assesses the learning levels of the students and organizes special Programmes for advanced learners and slow learners:

The identification of students who are slow, average, and quick learners is of utmost importance in order to assure the overall improvement of students on an individual level. This is done to ensure that every student is able to acquire as much valuable information as possible to the best of their abilities.

There are two ways to gain access: Assessment that is both subjective and objective.

Methods for evaluating learners who are slow, rapid, and average:

Teachers can identify slow learners by interacting with them in class, groups, or one-on-one. The sessional scores are 0-5, 6-10, and 11-15.

Students who can think creatively, assess problems, and solve problems using their own ideas and recommendations are remarkable, as are those with scores of 25 or higher.

Students who are not slow or rapid learners will be placed in the average learners group and score 16–24.

Slow learners:

Assignments that are specific to the abilities of slow learners are provided as support.

Facilitate more interaction among students who are quick learners in order to assist them in gaining a deeper comprehension of the topics.

The Counseling of Students.

Fast learners:

Make arrangements for group discussions, quizzes, and class tests, as well as lectures.

Providing assistance to Fast Learners by assigning tasks based on their level of proficiency

Produced Confidence and skills can be improved by participation in groups with slow learners.

Make arrangements for group discussions, quizzes, and class tests, as well as lectures.

Encouragement to conduct research.
